

What is the Grad Slam?

The Grad Slam showcases graduate student research through short TED Talk-style presentations. Master's and Doctoral students display one presentation slide, and they have three minutes to present their research using language their peers and non-specialists will understand.

Participating students will learn how to:

- 1) Hone their communication and presentation skills to articulate research concisely and effectively
- 2) Explain their research and its impact on an outside, non-specialized audience
- 3) Enrich their curriculum vitae and expand their connections through networking opportunities.

CSUB Grad Slam winner and 1st runner up will compete in the CSU Wide Grad Slam hosted by CSU Fullerton on May 1st.
