B. New Protocol Reviews [none]

C. Protocol Renewals Requiring Re-Review [none]

D. Proposal for Continuing IRB Review of First 5 Data Collection

The RERC summarized. Since 2002, the CSUB Applied Research Center [ARC] had collected data needed for program evaluation from clients served by First 5-funded activities in Kern County, and initially several neighboring counties. Because ARC wanted to use those data additionally for scholarly research, IRB review was required and the CSUB IRB provided these human subjects protections. There was a good working relationship between the CSUB IRB and ARC personnel -- Kenneth Nyberg and Edwin Sasaki, and particularly Everett Mann and Brian Hemphill, the latter two as ARC Security Officers/IRB Liaisons.

ARC was disbanded and a new CSUB research organization, the Institute for Social and Community Research [ISCR] took over the First 5 evaluation activities, but ISCR soon decided to abandon the First 5 contract. The Corporation for Standards and Outcomes [CS&O] was awarded the contract in June 2007. CS&O has no formal ties with CSUB although several of their essential personnel are former [Andrew Crawford] or current CSUB faculty [Brian Hemphill, CSUB Sociology/Anthropology Department].

In July 2007 the CSUB IRB modified the First 5 IRB authorization [Protocol 02-05] to accommodate transfer of the accumulated ARC data to CS&O and to enable continuing data collection with appropriately modified consent forms reflecting the entities involved. An important provision was that the IRB authorization is to terminate on 31 October 2007 when the First 5 contract with CSUB ends.

In September 2007 CS&O officers approached the CSUB IRB with a request for the CSUB IRB to continue our review and authorization of First 5 program evaluation data collection in Kern County. Brian Hemphill would serve as Security Officer/IRB Liaison.

There is no policy with respect to the CSUB IRB providing human subjects protections for projects carried about by investigators not connected with CSUB and not involving CSUB personnel as subjects, although some IRBs do provide such a service for external research. The only history at CSUB is that the RERC has allowed a former student of his to submit three research projects for IRB authorization when the investigator was a high school teacher with no connection to CSUB. This meeting is to discuss pros- and cons- and arrive at a recommendation for the CS&O request specifically.

Brian added comments. The CSUB IRB and First 5 have a very good history together. Access to the CS&O First 5 data would support MA theses for CSUB Sociology students, support CSUB faculty research, and provide financial support via jobs for CSUB research assistants, who would be involved in data entry and data analysis. There are good people involved at CS&O and at CSUB. A continuing relationship would benefit the participating agencies and ultimately the children served by the First 5 programs. Basically, the idea is to keep something in place that is working well.

Questions followed [Q = question, A = answer, C = comment]

Q: Where is CS&O headquarters? A: San Jose.

Q: Does CS&O have other contracts? A: They have most, or all, of the First 5 evaluation activities statewide.

Q: These other First 5 activities and other contracts are separate from the Kern County contract? A: Yes.

Q: The Kern County data themselves are also separate? A: Yes, but the current IRB authorization permits transmittal of the data to other levels, including statewide databases.

Q: A CSUB MA thesis using First 5 data would additionally have to go through the CSUB IRB?
A: Yes, but the blanket authorization of the First 5 human subjects protections would already be in place, rather like MA theses in Psychology using the Psychology Department subject pool, whose operation has already been authorized by the IRB.

- Q: What kind of data access are we talking about here? A: Normally data arrive to the evaluator [e.g., ARC] having been "de-identified" by the agency. If the data do still contain names or other personal identifiers, these are removed before anything else is done with the data. Some persons might even want to look at aggregate summary statistics describing certain variables in the database which would require little or no IRB oversight.
- C: It appears it would be a valuable service for the CSUB IRB to provide human subjects oversight, to strengthen program evaluation, provide opportunities for our students and faculty, and ensure that clients are treated ethically.
- C: Over the previous 5 years of First 5 activities the IRB via ARC personnel has had a very beneficial effect in encouraging ethical data collection by Bakersfield-area agencies. In this regard, having a local IRB involved is particularly valuable.
- Q: Is there any statewide IRB oversight involved with First 5? A: Yes and then at the county level other university IRBs or hospital IRBs participate.
- C: There would seem to be compensation issues. Other IRBs are probably not providing human subjects oversight without charging a fee. We should find out the compensation mechanisms at other institutions.
- Q: Who "owns" the data ultimately? A: CS&O [note: probably First 5, Kern County]
- Q: But, given this, CSUB students and faculty will still have access? A: Well, students have been able to access ARC data under appropriate circumstances. We would ensure access in the contract we arrange with CS&O. Otherwise, with no formal relationship between CSUB and CS&O, it's not clear what sort of access we would have. One purpose of the IRB contract would be to specify continuing access.
- C: Access should be stated specifically and spelled out in a contract. Also, there should be some wording so that a student would not lose data access in the middle of, say, an MA thesis, as has actually happened within certain agencies with changes in personnel.
- Q: What if, say, an MA student were also an agency employee and wanted to use agency or First 5 data? Would that be a conflict of interest? A: This comes up in the health care and educational settings where an investigator might also be a health care provider or teacher, having a dual role. This would have to be handled case by case, as the IRB does now.
- C: If our arrangement with CS&O is specified in terms of participation of our students and having a tenure-track faculty IRB liaison this would have a distinct advantage of not serving as a precedent that opens up the CSUB IRB to having to take on all sorts of requests from external groups for IRB services. Eventually there is a "capacity" question of just how many projects the CSUB IRB can handle without changing the way we operate.
- Q: Is CSUB exposed to liability via lawsuit in providing IRB oversight of a external project? A: Probably not at a different level than "we" are exposed already. If something goes wrong in a research project authorized by our IRB and researchers are following the protocol we approved, then the CSU and this IRB are already liable, not the investigator.
- C: So, there is some cost to CSUB in the sense that a lot of First 5 data collection would be taking place under the authorization of the CSUB IRB.

- Q: Would we be undertaking additional compliance monitoring with a First 5 contract? A: We already have yearly reports. We could require more. We could look at schedule of agency visitations too.
- Q: The issue of leverage for compliance enforcement came up earlier. It sometimes seems that we have enough trouble getting our own faculty and students to comply. A: Withdrawal of IRB approval is a major lever.
- Q: On compensation, who or what are we talking about being compensated? A: Compensating CSUB persons associated with the IRB process would probably create more problems than it is worth, including raising conflict issues.
- C: There probably wouldn't be much cost to CSUB, so charges couldn't be very high. Nonetheless this is another instance in which we suspect CSUB may want to be compensated. However the faculty involved will see none of this and will end up increasing our workload by donating our services because we are good people. Who knows how the money charged will be spent, or probably miss-spent? Let's insist that any payments to CSUB for IRB services be used for direct support of student research, such as research fellowships or stipends.

There was a consensus that: [a] the First 5 programs provide valuable services to the children of our community and that evaluation of these programs is essential to their continuing success. [b] access to First 5 data by our students and faculty and the continued involvement of our students and faculty in First 5 program evaluation is valuable, and [c] protection of the rights of the adult and child clients of the First 5 agencies as they serve as research participants is a beneficial service that the CSUB IRB is positioned to provide.

Duquette moved and Wade-Southard seconded a motion to recommend that the CSUB IRB and CS&O, following review and authorization of a full protocol to the IRB, enter into an agreement for the CSUB IRB to provide human subjects protections for local data collection under the CS&O First 5 contract. Continuation of Brian Hemphill as IRB Liaison will be specified. Compensation will be left open except to specify that any compensation be used to support CSUB student research [Approved, 7-0, with one Board member having left]
